

The Case Crane and Kilbourne Jacobs Company - K71

Chuck Spaulding

The US Catalog lists the user of perfin design K71 as "Kilbourne & Jacobs." Those initials are a perfect match for the design K&J. The embossed envelope, shown in reduced size on the top of page 77, also bears a 3¢ purple Thomas Jefferson stamp punched with the K&J of perfin pattern K71. There are several possibilities here. They are:

- 1 The current entry in the catalog is incorrect.
- 2 The catalog entry is based on a former version of the company which later joined with the Case Crane Company
- 3 Kilbourne & Jacobs was a spin off from The Case Crane and Kilbourne Jacobs Company.

(Continued on page 77)

The Perfins Bulletin, April, 1998

THE CASE CRANE AND KILBOURNE JACOBS CO.,
P. O. Drawer 177,
COLUMBUS, OHIO.

SELINGSGROVE STATE COLONY FOR EPILEPTICS, SELINGSGROVE, PA.

Reduced size cover from The Case Crane and Kilbourne Jacobs Company

The Case Crane (Continued from page 76)

Editor's comments:

A full size illustration was forwarded to John Randall, the US Catalog Editor, for comment. His comments were:

A very interesting cover. Apparently, Kilbourne & Jacobs merged with or was taken over by Case Crane. I do not believe that the Catalog entry is incorrect. Kilbourne Jacobs was definitely not a spinoff from Case Crane. Until this cover showed up, I had only seen this perfin used on the 1908-17 stamp issues. Apparently some clerk rediscovered the punch many years after its use was discontinued and decided to try it out. There is a gap of about twenty years between this cover and other use. Things like this really foul up a cataloger's life.